CRIME OVERSHADOWS ALL OTHER ISSUES AS THE MOST URGENT IN NYC, QUINNIPIAC UNIVERSITY NEW YORK CITY POLL FINDS;
BUT HALF OF VOTERS SAY THEY EXPECT TOURISM TO INCREASE

Crime tops the list as the most urgent issue facing New York City say voters of all political parties, races, genders, age groups, and boroughs, according to a Quinnipiac (KWIN-uh-pea-ack) University poll of registered voters in New York City released today. Overall, 49 percent of voters say crime is the most urgent issue, followed by affordable housing (15 percent) and homelessness (12 percent). Of the ten issues voters could choose from, no other issue broke into double digits.

MAYOR ADAMS

Voters give Mayor Eric Adams a 43 – 37 percent job approval rating with 20 percent not offering an opinion. In Quinnipiac’s previous New York City poll released on February 9, 2022, voters gave Adams a 46 – 27 percent job approval rating with 27 percent not offering an opinion.

“Mayor Adams gets a positive score on his job performance, but it’s tepid. The biggest weight on his numbers: crime. It’s by far the most urgent issue and voters are holding him accountable,” said Quinnipiac University Polling Analyst Mary Snow.

On his handling of the response to the coronavirus, Adams receives a 53 – 37 percent approval rating, compared to a 61 – 28 percent approval rating in February.

On his handling of relations between the police and the community, Adams receives a 49 – 43 percent approval rating, compared to a 57 – 29 percent approval rating in February.

On his handling of the public schools, Adams receives a 41 – 37 percent approval rating, compared to a 44 – 31 percent approval rating in February.

On his handling of crime, Adams receives a negative 37 – 54 percent approval rating, compared to a positive 49 – 35 percent approval rating in February.

On his handling of the city budget, Adams receives a negative 34 – 41 percent approval rating.

On his handling of homelessness, Adams receives a negative 31 – 56 percent approval rating.

COMBATING CRIME & GUN VIOLENCE

An overwhelming majority of voters (86 percent) support having more police officers in the New York City subway system, while 12 percent oppose it.

Mayor Adams has said he's exploring different technologies to use for metal detectors in the subway system to screen for weapons. A majority of voters (62 percent) think installing metal detectors in New York City's subway system is a good idea, while 35 percent think it is a bad idea.

Forty-three percent of voters are either very confident (8 percent) or somewhat confident (35 percent) that Mayor Adams will reduce gun violence in New York City, while 53 percent are either not so confident (30 percent) or not confident at all (23 percent).

In Quinnipiac's February poll, a majority of voters (58 percent) were either very confident (14 percent) or somewhat confident (44 percent) that Mayor Adams would reduce gun violence in New York City, while 39 percent were either not so confident (22 percent) or not confident at all (17 percent).

"In the wake of April's mass shooting on the subway along with an increase in major crimes, confidence slips in the Mayor being able to reduce gun violence," added Snow.

NYC HOMELESS

More than 7 in 10 voters (72 percent) think New York City is doing too little to help homeless people, while 19 percent think it is doing about the right amount, and 2 percent think it is doing too much to help homeless people.

ECONOMY & TOURISM

Twenty-nine percent of voters say the state of New York City's economy is either excellent (2 percent) or good (27 percent), while 70 percent say the state of New York City's economy is either not so good (41 percent) or poor (29 percent).

Twenty-eight percent of voters think the economic conditions in New York City will get better during the next 12 months, while 32 percent think they will get worse and 37 percent think they will stay about the same.

Two-thirds of voters (66 percent) are either very confident (25 percent) or somewhat confident (41 percent) that New York City's economy will fully recover from the coronavirus pandemic, while one third of voters (33 percent) are either not so confident (23 percent) or not confident at all (10 percent).

Half of voters (50 percent) think tourism in New York City will increase during the next 12 months, while 14 percent think it will decrease and 34 percent think it will stay about the same.

"There's a silver lining tucked in a somewhat bleak snapshot of the city. Despite concerns over crime, half of voters expect tourism in New York City to increase over the next year. In the long run, a majority is expressing confidence that the city's economy will fully bounce back from the losses of the pandemic," added Snow.

MASKS

Nearly 7 in 10 voters (69 percent) think riders on buses, subways, and commuter trains should be required to wear masks, while 29 percent think they should not be required to wear masks.

Even if masks are not required to ride on buses, subways, and commuter trains, more than three-quarters of voters (77 percent) say they would wear a mask when riding on them, while 21 percent say they would not.

JOB APPROVALS: OTHER PUBLIC OFFICIALS

Voters give Governor Kathy Hochul a 50 – 40 percent job approval rating with 11 percent not offering an opinion.

Job approval ratings for other public officials:

- Public Advocate Jumaane Williams: 45 percent approve, 25 percent disapprove, with 30 percent not offering an opinion;
- Police Commissioner Keechant Sewell: 44 percent approve, 26 percent disapprove, with 30 percent not offering an opinion;
- City Comptroller Brad Lander: 39 percent approve, 22 percent disapprove, with 39 percent not offering an opinion;
- City Council Speaker Adrienne Adams: 38 percent approve, 19 percent disapprove, with 43 percent not offering an opinion;
- Schools Chancellor David Banks: 34 percent approve, 31 percent disapprove, with 35 percent not offering an opinion.

1,249 New York City registered voters were surveyed from April 28th – May 2nd with a margin of error of +/- 2.8 percentage points.

The Quinnipiac University Poll, directed by Doug Schwartz, Ph.D. since 1994, conducts independent, non-partisan national and state polls on politics and issues.
