NYC MAYOR ADAMS' APPROVAL SINKS TO RECORD LOW, UNDER FIRE ON SEVERAL FRONTS,
QUINNIPIAC UNIVERSITY NEW YORK CITY POLL FINDS;
MOST VOTERS WORRY BUDGET CUTS WILL AFFECT THEIR DAILY LIVES

As New York City Mayor Eric Adams nears the end of his second year in office, voters give the mayor a negative 28 – 58 percent job approval rating with 14 percent not offering an opinion, according to a Quinnipiac (KWIN-uh-pea-ack) University poll of registered voters in New York City released today.

This is the lowest job approval rating for a New York City mayor since Quinnipiac University began polling New York City registered voters in 1996. Before today, the previous low was a negative 31 – 60 percent job approval rating for Mayor Bloomberg in July 2003.

In today's poll, the mayor receives his only positive rating from Black voters who approve of the job he is doing 48 – 38 percent.

Among his own party, Democrats give him a negative 35 – 49 percent job approval rating.

Voters were asked about Mayor Adams' handling of:

- crime: 33 percent approve, while 60 percent disapprove;
- the public schools: 31 percent approve, while 53 percent disapprove;
- the surge of migrants seeking sanctuary in New York City: 26 percent approve, while 66 percent disapprove;
- the city budget: 22 percent approve, while 66 percent disapprove;
- homelessness: 22 percent approve, while 72 percent disapprove.

PERSONAL TRAITS

When it comes to the mayor's personal traits, he receives negative scores as well.

Voters were asked whether or not Eric Adams...

- has strong leadership qualities: 40 percent say yes, 55 percent say no;
- understands the problems of people like them: 38 percent say yes, 56 percent say no;
- is honest and trustworthy: 32 percent say yes, 54 percent say no.

“There's no good news for Mayor Adams in this poll. Not only are voters giving him poor grades on the job he's doing at City Hall, their views on his character have dimmed. As the city faces across the board budget cuts while dealing with a migrant crisis, headlines about a federal investigation into the mayor's 2021 campaign and an accusation of sexual assault leveled against him from 30 years ago are taking a toll,” said Quinnipiac University Poll Assistant Director Mary Snow.

BUDGET CUTS

Eighty-three percent of voters in New York City are either very concerned (57 percent) or somewhat concerned (26 percent) that the citywide budget cuts announced by Mayor Adams will affect their daily lives, while 16 percent of voters are either not so concerned (10 percent) or not concerned at all (6 percent). The mayor has said the cuts are needed as the city faces a 7 billion dollar gap in next year's budget.

Nearly two-thirds of voters (65 percent) support raising taxes on the wealthiest New Yorkers to help close the city's budget gap, while 30 percent oppose it.

"Generally, there's not many things New Yorkers agree on. But they are in sync on a number of issues facing the city right now, including worrying about how the mayor's budget cuts will affect their day to day lives. When it comes to a solution, all but Republicans and Staten Island voters support raising taxes on the city's wealthiest residents," added Snow.

MIGRANT CRISIS

More than 8 in 10 voters (85 percent) are either very concerned (64 percent) or somewhat concerned (21 percent) that the city will not be able to accommodate the surge of migrants that have made their way to New York City since the spring of 2022, while 14 percent are either not so concerned (7 percent) or not concerned at all (7 percent).

A majority of voters (62 percent) agree with a statement Mayor Adams made a few months ago that the surge of migrants seeking sanctuary in New York City could destroy the city, while 33 percent disagree.

Eight in 10 voters (80 percent) think the federal government is doing too little to help New York City deal with the surge of migrants seeking sanctuary there, 8 percent think the government is doing about the right amount, and 6 percent think the federal government is doing too much to help the city deal with the situation.

"In a city where the words 'Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free' are embedded in its history, voters express there's a limit. An overwhelming number of them worry the city doesn't have the capacity to welcome the surge of migrants that have been arriving in New York since the spring of 2022. And they near unanimously agree that the federal government isn't doing enough to help New York City," added Snow.

Roughly two-thirds of voters (65 percent) approve of the right to shelter mandate, which states that the city must house anyone who is homeless and seeking shelter, while 31 percent disapprove of the mandate.

SATISFACTION

Thirty-two percent of voters are either very satisfied (4 percent) or somewhat satisfied (28 percent) with the way things are going in New York City today, while two-thirds of voters (67 percent) are either somewhat dissatisfied (26 percent) or very dissatisfied (41 percent). This is the highest percentage of voters who say they are very dissatisfied since the Quinnipiac University Poll began asking this question of registered voters in New York City in 1997.

MOST URGENT ISSUE

Given a list of nine issues and asked which is the most urgent one facing New York City today, 25 percent of voters say affordable housing, 25 percent say crime, 16 percent say immigration, 12 percent say homelessness, and 9 percent say inflation.

CRIME

Nearly 6 in 10 voters (58 percent) think crime in New York City is a very serious problem, 33 percent think it is a somewhat serious problem, 6 percent think it is not a very serious problem, and 2 percent think it is not a problem at all.

The number of people saying crime in New York City is a very serious problem is down from 74 percent in February 2022, when it reached a record high in a Quinnipiac University New York City poll.

Thirty-eight percent of voters say they feel less safe in New York City compared to a year ago, while 8 percent say they feel safer, and 55 percent say they feel about the same.

2021 CAMPAIGN INVESTIGATION

Asked about the federal investigation into whether foreign money was funneled into the 2021 mayoral campaign of Eric Adams, 22 percent of voters believe Adams did something illegal, while 30 percent believe he did something unethical but nothing illegal, 20 percent believe he did not do anything wrong, and 28 percent did not offer an opinion.

SEXUAL ASSAULT ACCUSATION

Thirty-eight percent of voters say they have heard or read either a lot (10 percent) or some (28 percent) about the civil lawsuit recently filed by a woman against Mayor Adams accusing him of sexually assaulting her in 1993 while they were both city employees, while a majority of voters (56 percent) say they have heard or read either not too much (19 percent) or not much at all (37 percent) about the lawsuit.

Based on what voters know about the lawsuit, 58 percent think the allegations are either very serious (33 percent) or somewhat serious (25 percent), while 30 percent think they are either not so serious (13 percent) or not serious at all (17 percent).

Mayor Adams has strongly denied that he sexually assaulted anyone and said he did not remember meeting the woman who made the accusations. Voters are split on whether they think the mayor is being truthful about the sexual assault allegation being made against him, as 35 percent think he is being truthful, 32 percent think he is not being truthful, and 33 percent did not offer an opinion.

JOB APPROVALS

Voters are split on their approval of Governor Kathy Hochul with 45 percent approving of the job she is doing, 48 percent disapproving, and 7 percent not offering an opinion.

Job approval ratings for other public officials:

- Public Advocate Jumaane Williams: 43 percent approve, 29 percent disapprove, with 29 percent not offering an opinion;

- City Comptroller Brad Lander: 39 percent approve, 27 percent disapprove, with 34 percent not offering an opinion;
- City Council Speaker Adrienne Adams: 34 percent approve, 29 percent disapprove, with 37 percent not offering an opinion;
- Schools Chancellor David Banks: 34 percent approve, 38 percent disapprove, with 28 percent not offering an opinion;
- Police Commissioner Edward Caban: 33 percent approve, 35 percent disapprove, with 32 percent not offering an opinion.

PREJUDICE AGAINST JEWISH & MUSLIM NEW YORKERS

Nearly three-quarters of voters (72 percent) think that prejudice against Jewish people in New York City today is either a very serious problem (43 percent) or a somewhat serious problem (29 percent), while 24 percent think it is either a not so serious problem (16 percent) or not a problem at all (8 percent). New York City is home to the largest Jewish population in the United States. Ninety percent of Jewish voters think it is either a very serious problem (63 percent) or a somewhat serious problem (27 percent), while 9 percent think it is either a not so serious problem (8 percent) or not a problem at all (1 percent).

Sixty-three percent of New York City voters think that prejudice against Muslim people in New York City today is either a very serious problem (32 percent) or a somewhat serious problem (31 percent), while 32 percent think it is either a not so serious problem (19 percent) or not a problem at all (13 percent).

ISRAEL – HAMAS WAR

Thirty-seven percent of New York City voters approve of the way Israel is responding to the October 7th Hamas terrorist attack, while 45 percent disapprove and 18 percent did not offer an opinion.

Voters are split on the United States sending more military aid to Israel for their efforts in the war with Hamas, with 45 percent supporting it and 46 percent opposing it.

1,297 New York City self-identified registered voters were surveyed from November 30th – December 4th with a margin of error of +/- 2.7 percentage points.

The Quinnipiac University Poll, directed by Doug Schwartz, Ph.D. since 1994, conducts independent, non-partisan national and state polls on politics and issues. Surveys adhere to industry best practices and are based on random samples of adults using random digit dialing with live interviewers calling landlines and cell phones.
